MARY LOU SMOKE: Thanks Dan, I don't have too much today. The year is slowly winding down and there's not too much happening here.

[Mary Lou continues with community announcements]

DS: Niá:wen, Mary Lou. Yes, [Dan continues with community announcements]

So this week, we at Smoke Signals are going to close with a teaching from one of our Ojibwe elders. His name is Bear Shaganash and he comes from the Walpole Island First Nations. And this is a talk that he gave, or a teaching that he shared, at the Gathering of Nations conference this past fall down on the Walpole Island reserve. It is...it's entitled...it's a teaching on the gathering of Nations. And we're going to close this week with music from Kashtin. Some of you's may have seen that on CBC this past week. The song is entitled "Tshinanu," which means all of you in Innu from their album entitled Kashtin. So...if everyone just wants to wish, you know, send out their wishes, their holiday wishes to everybody.

JOHN TURNER: Okay, see you next week, Dan.

DS: Okay, John, right on.

JT: Yep, you're going to be here, right?

DS: Yes, yes.

JT: Yeah, and Mary Lou? And Hal?

MS: Yeah, we're all going to be here.

JT: Oh, we'll all be here [laughter]. Okay.

MS: We'd like to wish everybody a Merry Christmas if they're celebrating Christmas. And a Happy Holidays if they're having Happy Holidays.

JT: Oh everybody will have a Happy Holiday, I'm sure, yes.

MS: And I hope Santa's good to everybody.

JT: And I'd also like to wish all the people that are having their Christmas parties at N'Amerind too—I think the elders and the kids are having two separate parties?

DS: The children's Christmas party is today and the elder's was on Wednesday.

JT: Oh okay, well Merry Christmas to all of them.

DS: Yep. Onen ki' wahi, gawaabamin.
